INFO-RIGHTS Video Blogs: Your Guide to the Rights of Posted Workers in the EU

The INFO-RIGHTS project has developed an innovative series of video blogs designed to make complex labour regulations accessible to everyone. These video resources provide detailed and practical information on employment terms and conditions in EU Member States and Norway, specifically targeting the agricultural and manufacturing sectors.

Why These Video Blogs Matter:

Posted workers often face challenges in understanding their rights within unfamiliar legal environments. Our video blog series removes these barriers by presenting information in clear and accessible formats. The content supports workers, employers, and social partners in navigating the complexities of EU posting regulations, ensuring compliance and safeguarding workers' rights.

Transparency through Technology:

The INFO-RIGHTS video blog portal represents a significant step forward in promoting transparency within the EU single market. By providing comprehensive information on labour standards in each Member State, the project strengthens the capacity of all stakeholders to ensure fair treatment and compliance with EU directives on posted workers.

Current EU Context:

The timeliness of these resources is particularly relevant given recent developments in EU initiatives. The European Commission is advancing proposals for a centralized electronic declaration system for posted workers, aimed at simplifying compliance processes across borders. In addition, new regulations addressing forced labour in supply chains, including agricultural products, highlight the importance of protecting workers' rights at every stage of production.
